CHAIRMAN'S ADDRESS

"Women belong in all places where decisions are being made."

— Ruth Bader Ginsburg

Dear Students,

Warm greetings to all of you!

This powerful thought by Ruth Bader Ginsburg resonates with the direction we are shaping—where leadership is defined not by barriers, but by ability, intent, and the courage to contribute.

This year's elections, held in close reflection of the values celebrated on March 8 – International Women's Day, remind us that leadership is about inclusivity, equal opportunity, and the courage to contribute.

I am delighted to share that the MCM Elections have been completed, with 12 members elected from a spirited pool of 22 contestants. What is particularly heartening is that 7 out of the 12 elected members are women students, reflecting a progressive shift towards greater inclusivity and balanced representation within our student leadership. This is not merely a number—it is a reflection of the vision we strive to build: a SICASA that is inclusive in thought, diverse in participation, and equal in opportunity.

My heartfelt congratulations to all the elected representatives, including the Vice Chairperson - Ms. Keerthika –Vice Chairperson, Secretary - Mr. Pragatheswaran, Treasurer - Ms. Renuka and all the Managing Committee Members. You will also find the list of elected members with their photographs in the newsletter and as well as the SICASA Page. Your willingness to step forward and serve reflects the true spirit of leadership and responsibility.

At this juncture, I also extend my sincere appreciation to every candidate who contested—your courage to participate itself is commendable and keeps the democratic spirit of SICASA vibrant and meaningful.

The month gone by has been one of energy, participation, and new beginnings for SICASA.

We also witnessed enthusiastic participation in our recent knowledge initiatives by THE New Committee.. The Articleship Career Development Program (ACAD) provided valuable clarity to students stepping into their articleship phase—helping them make informed choices that shape their careers.

Similarly, the Bank Audit Seminar offered deep insights into practical aspects of audit, bridging the gap between theory and real-world application. I extend my sincere thanks to the esteemed speakers for sharing their time, knowledge, and experience, making these sessions impactful and enriching.

Looking ahead, SICASA remains committed to supporting your academic journey. We are gearing up for Revision Classes for CA Intermediate and Final students, designed to strengthen conceptual clarity and boost exam readiness. We are working on roping in the best faculty who will provide the best insights for your exam preparedness.

As we also step into the festive spirit of the Tamil New Year (Puthandu), it marks a time of renewal, hope, and fresh aspirations. May this new beginning bring clarity in your goals, discipline in your efforts, and success in your pursuits! The SICASA team has also put together a festival-based special program that will not only destress you but also invigorate you to prepare well for the exams.

Dear students, SICASA continues to be your platform for learning, leadership, and growth. Let us move forward together with purpose and positivity.

Wishing you all success in the months ahead.

Warm regards,
CA Deepak Ladda
Chairman, SICASA – SIRC of ICAI -2026-27

FROM THE EDITOR'S DESK

This edition comes at a time marked by new beginnings, renewed energy, and a shared commitment to growth. With the formation of a new Managing Committee, we step forward with a vision that is not only inclusive in thought but also purposeful in action.

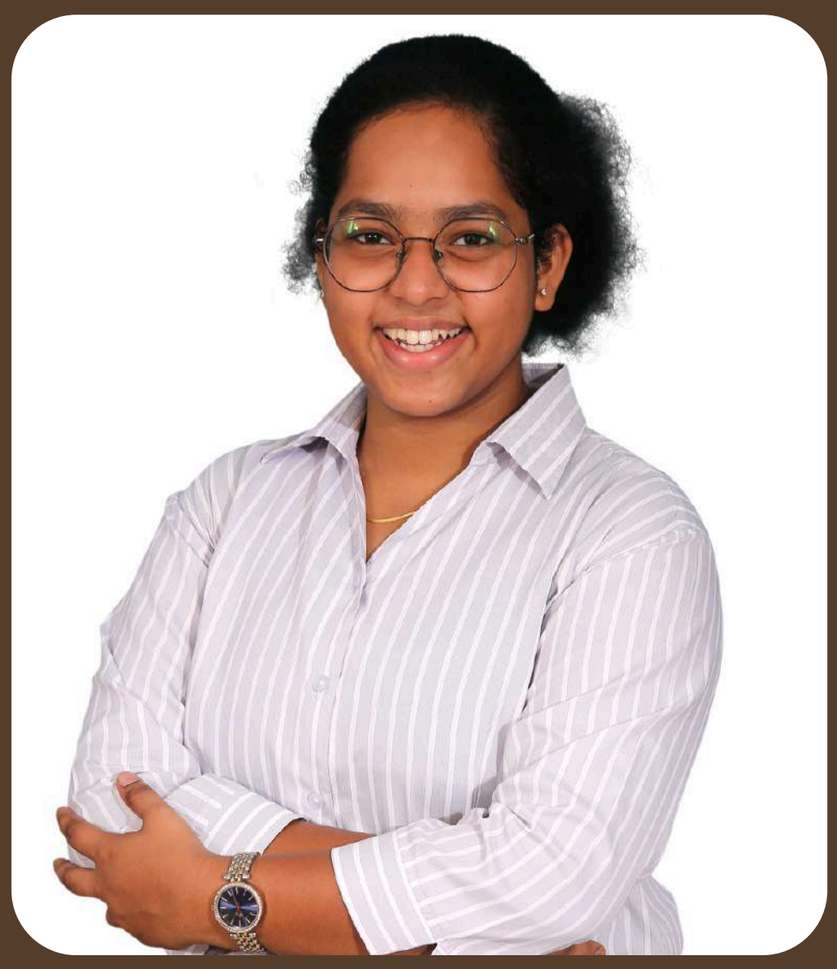

Over the past month, the momentum has been both encouraging and inspiring. From knowledge-driven initiatives to opportunities that bridge learning with practical exposure, the focus continues to remain on creating meaningful experiences that add value to every student's journey.

As we approach the upcoming examination season, this edition also brings together perspectives, reflections, and insights that aim to support your preparation in a balanced and practical manner. At the same time, moments of celebration and engagement remind us that the journey is as important as the destination.

This newsletter is not just a record of events, but a reflection of participation, collaboration, and collective progress.

We hope this edition resonates with you and continues to keep you informed, engaged, and inspired.

VICE - CHAIRPERSON

BEYOND THE BALANCE SHEET 🚀

“Precision in Practice. Passion in Life.”

Let’s be candid , We spend our days auditing "True and Fair Views," yet our own work-life equilibrium is often neither. As your MCM, we are committed to moving beyond academic advice to facilitate a fundamental shift in how we navigate our dual identities as professionals and individuals.

Our term is anchored in one transformative mission , we are evolving SICASA from a traditional seminar hub into a high-octane ecosystem where growth is measured by the quality of our collective experience, not just technical benchmarks.

The Roadmap to 6:00 PM - Strategic Efficiency 🛠️ , Articleship is rigorous, but burnout is optional. My priority is Articleship Cheat Codes—high-impact masterclasses designed to sharpen your technical agility. By mastering advanced automation and audit shortcuts, we will reclaim our time, ensuring you can close your workpapers by 6:00 PM and reconnect with the world beyond the office.

Vibes > Volumes , Cultivating Connection 🍹 , It’s time to transcend technical standards and initiate meaningful dialogue. We are launching SICASA Hours: informal networking forums built for genuine connection. We’re stripping away the "sections" to focus on peer support and shared challenges—proving that no one has to navigate the complexities of Ind AS in isolation. 🍕✨

Open Doors, Limitless Opportunities , our mission is to bridge the gap between student aspirations and industry reality. Whether through exclusive access to corporate visionaries or providing a stage for your own leadership to shine, we will ensure every student’s voice carries weight.

This year, SICASA is more than an institution; it is your professional support system. Let’s stop merely "complying" with our schedules and start strategically designing our lives.

MANAGING COMMITTEE 2026-2027

PRAGATHESWARAN

SECRETARY

It is a honour to be elected as Secretary of SICASA for the tenure 2026-2027

My vision as Secretary of SICASA is to build a more accessible, active, and versatile platform that truly represents and empowers every CA student. I believe SICASA should not just be an organization, but a vibrant community where ideas are welcomed, talents are nurtured, and opportunities are available to all, irrespective of background or stage in the course.

Accessibility will be my foremost priority—ensuring that every student is aware of and able to benefit from the wide range of programs, resources, and initiatives offered by SICASA. By improving communication channels and outreach, I aim to bridge the gap between the committee and students, making participation easier and more inclusive.

To make SICASA more active, I envision a dynamic calendar filled with academic sessions, skill-building workshops, cultural events, and networking opportunities that keep students consistently engaged. These initiatives will not only enhance professional competence but also encourage personal growth and confidence.

Versatility will be the driving force behind my approach. I aim to introduce diverse programs that cater to varying interests—be it academics, leadership, creativity, or fitness—ensuring holistic development. By fostering collaboration and innovation, SICASA can become a platform where students explore their potential beyond textbooks.

Through dedicated leadership, transparency, and teamwork, I aspire to create a supportive and energetic environment that motivates every student to participate, contribute, and excel. Together, we can transform SICASA into a truly impactful and inspiring student body.

RENUKA T

TREASURER

Every rupee has a responsibility. Every decision has an impact."

As finance students, we understand that every number tells a story and every decision carries a consequence. The role of a Treasurer goes far beyond maintaining accounts—it is about ensuring that every rupee spent by SICASA reflects purpose, value, and trust.
I'm Renuka Thenneti, and my vision as your Treasurer is to build a system where financial decisions are not just accurate, but meaningful. Finance, to me, is not about restriction—it is about enabling ideas, supporting initiatives, and creating opportunities that truly benefit every member.

"ஆற்றின்அளவறிந்து ஈக; அது பொருள் போற்றி வழங்கும் நெறி"
(Spend within your means; that is the way to preserve and distribute wealth wisely)

This timeless wisdom reminds us that responsible financial management is rooted in balance, foresight, and discipline.

With a strong focus on transparency, accountability, and thoughtful planning, I aim to ensure that every allocation is made with clarity and intent. Each initiative we support should deliver real value, foster growth, and strengthen our community. Responsible financial management is not just about tracking expenses—it is about maximizing impact.

I am committed to creating a culture where trust is built through openness, and where every member feels confident that resources are being used wisely and effectively.
Because true financial leadership is not measured by how much we spend, but by how responsibly and purposefully we act. Let's go beyond accounting—let's ensure every rupee creates value, every decision builds trust, and every effort drives meaningful impact. Together.

YUVASHREE M

JOINT SECRETARY

From volunteering for the National Conference, NTS, and Youth Fest to now serving as your Joint Secretary—this truly feels like a dream come true. My journey within the SICASA community has been defined by a passion for service,

I am deeply honored to announce that I have been elected as the Joint Secretary of SICASA of SIRC of ICAI for the 2026-27 term. This opportunity to serve is a responsibility I hold with great respect and enthusiasm.

Many see the Joint Secretary as a supportive role in the absence of Secretary and Treasurer. However, I believe this role is about active leadership and innovation.

In reality, my vision for this term goes far beyond. I see this role as a bridge between student aspirations and tangible results.

My mission is to foster innovation by transforming fresh ideas into impactful reality. By actively listening to what the CA student community truly needs, I aim to ensure that our initiatives are student-centric and value-driven.

Whether it is through technical seminars, soft-skill workshops, or new digital forums, every event we conduct will have one goal: to add value to your journey as a future Chartered Accountant.

I am committed to serving our CA student community and ensuring that we turn our collective goals into results.

Let us move forward with the belief that our collective goals are achievable when we work with synergy and purpose. Let's work together to achieve great success this year.

MANAGING COMMITTEE 2026-2027

AASTHA

TECH FORUM PRESIDENT

I strongly believe that in today's world, being a good professional is no longer enough, you also need to be a tech-enabled one. Because let's be honest, knowing concepts is great, but knowing Excel shortcuts sometimes saves more time than theory ever will.

At the same time, there's a clear gap, many CA students are aware of technology, but not always confident in actually using it.

That's where my vision for the Tech Forum (Techfinity) comes in: to build a platform where technology becomes practical, accessible, and genuinely useful in a CA student's day-to-day journey. Not something intimidating but something you actually enjoy learning.

The focus will be on exposure to tools that matter, whether it's Excel from basics to advanced, or masterclasses on SAP, Zoho, and Tally. We also plan to introduce Aura Workshops (AI learning for rising achievers) so students are not just keeping up, but staying ahead.

Alongside this, through workshops, competitions, and interactive sessions, we aim to make tech more engaging and less "I'll do it later."

Ultimately, the goal is simple: when a CA student steps into the professional world, they shouldn't just understand the work rather they should know how to do it efficiently, smartly, and with confidence.

Because in the future, the best CA won't be the one who works the hardest, but the one who works the smartest.

SAI SANJAY

FIN B PRESIDENT

Perspective Growth Redemption

My vision is to build FinB as a platform that expands the perspective of CA students beyond textbooks and deadlines, helping them understand the real-world dynamics of finance, business, and markets.

Through consistent insights on stock markets, business ideas, and thought-provoking content, I aim to make learning practical, relevant, and continuous. FinB is not just about information, but about shaping how students think, analyze, and act.

I strive to create a space where motivation meets awareness—where students develop resilience, adaptability, and a redeeming quality that drives them forward, no matter how challenging the journey becomes.

By delivering the right knowledge with clarity and consistency, FinB seeks to ensure that every student stays informed, inspired, and prepared to grow beyond the conventional path of a Chartered Accountant.

I envision FinB as a bridge between academic knowledge and real-world leadership, where CA students move beyond theoretical learning to develop clarity in thinking and confidence in action. By translating complex financial and business concepts into practical insights, FinB aims to equip students not just to understand the world, but to interpret it with perspective and purpose.

Beyond content, FinB aspires to cultivate a community driven by knowledge, curiosity, and leadership. It is about shaping individuals who think independently, act decisively, and grow consistently—students who are not confined to the CA journey alone, but are prepared to lead, adapt, and create impact in an ever-evolving professional landscape.

R YOGESH KANNA

ORATORS' FORUM PRESIDENT

Hello Readers,

I am honoured to serve as President of the SICASA Orators Forum for 2026–27, with a commitment to building confident and impactful community of communicators.

My vision this year is to strengthen the foundation of the forum through structured, engaging, and result-oriented initiatives. To achieve this, I am introducing four key pillars:

The Orators Leaderboard, a performance-driven initiative that recognizes consistency and excellence. Each month, outstanding speakers will be acknowledged as "Speaker of the Month," contributing to a cumulative ranking that celebrates the top performer at the Youth Fest.

The Presenters Meet, designed to encourage creative thinking and enhance presentation skills. This initiative aims to prepare members for highly revered opportunities such as national conferences and professional presentations, equipping them with the confidence to stand out.

The Mock Orators Series, a practical learning platform featuring mock interviews, mock group discussions, mock press conferences, and the Mock Audit Defence Room. This series will simulate real-world scenarios, helping participants develop clarity, presence of mind and controlled communication.

The Speaker Development Program, a structured initiative focused on consistent personal growth. Through guided practice, mentorship, and constructive feedback, this program will help participants refine their communication style, build confidence and transform into good speakers.

I strongly believe technical knowledge alone isn't enough today. Communication and soft skills are what truly set professionals apart. Through this tenure, I aim to help our members build that edge and express their ideas with confidence and clarity.

WRITERS' FORUM

PRESIDENT

It is indeed a great honour to serve as the President of the Writers' Forum, and to contribute towards building a space that encourages thought, creativity, and meaningful expression.

My vision for the Forum is to shape an open and inspiring environment where thoughts find words, ideas take form, and expression feels natural rather than intimidating. Writing is more than a skill—it is a voice*, and this space aims to help every individual discover and develop that voice, especially those unsure of where to begin.*

*This journey is guided by four evolving pillars—Create, Showcase, Learn, and Express. It begins with creating, where imagination is sparked and ideas are explored freely. It then moves to showcasing, offering platforms and competitions—including unique formats like Pen to Podium , financial thriller writing—to present one's work. Learning is seamlessly integrated through simple, accessible initiatives that bring clarity, structure, and confidence to the writing process, enabling expression to emerge naturally in one's own unique style.*

The vision also embraces the practical side of writing*, focusing on exam paper presentation, structured answers, and professional articulation—ensuring that* expression is not only creative, but also effective. Alongside this, emphasis is placed on nurturing reading habits and encouraging allied forms like photography, fostering deeper observation and diverse storytelling.

Ultimately, the aim is to cultivate a community of thinkers and storytellers*—individuals who not only write well, but also observe deeply, think clearly, and express themselves with confidence and purpose.*

PUBLIC RELATIONS HEAD

Perception Strategy Presence

I am here with a clear sense of purpose and a definite direction for what I want to build.

My approach to public relations has always been grounded in one belief. Communication is not about being loud. It is about being believed. Before I craft any message, I listen. Before I react, I observe. Because the most meaningful communication comes from truly understanding the people you are speaking to, and that understanding is something I never skip.

Strategically, my focus anchors on two clear priorities. The first is building strong, meaningful collaborations with various branches, because isolated efforts will only take us so far. When branches work together, ideas multiply, reach expands, and the community we build becomes far more powerful than anything we could create alone. The second is making every event genuinely accessible to students across all branches, because inclusion is not just a value for me.

It is a strategy. When more students participate, the energy is stronger, the impact is wider, and the work we do together carries far greater meaning. Beyond these priorities, I bring calm and intention to everything I lead. Every message I put out has a purpose. Every word is deliberate. And when pressure rises, my approach does not panic. It sharpens. I stay measured, I stay consistent, and I make sure our communication remains steady and trustworthy regardless of the circumstances.

Strong reputations are built slowly, through honest actions that align with honest words. I am here to build exactly that. A presence that every student across every branch can genuinely trust and believe in.

MANAGING COMMITTEE 2026-2027

PARKAVI

SPORTS HEAD

My vision as Head of Sports is to build a culture where every student values discipline, resilience, and teamwork as much as academic success. Sports are not just about winning matches—they are about shaping character, developing leadership, and fostering a spirit of perseverance that stays with individuals throughout their lives.

I believe that a strong sporting culture contributes to both personal growth and collective success. It teaches students how to handle pressure, accept both victory and defeat with grace, and continuously strive for improvement. These qualities are essential not only on the field but also in professional and personal life.

I aim to create an environment where participation is encouraged, talent is nurtured, and every student finds an opportunity to grow physically and mentally. By organizing structured training sessions, inclusive programs for beginners, we can ensure that sports become accessible and enjoyable for everyone, regardless of their skill level.

Through consistent efforts, strong leadership, and active participation from students, we will strive to bring out the best in each individual while building a united, energetic, and motivated student community. Together, we can create a legacy where sports inspire excellence, strengthen bonds, and become an integral part of every student's journey.

I also aim to encourage student-led teams and leadership opportunities within sports activities, so that individuals not only participate but also learn to take responsibility and make decisions. By creating a balance between competitive spirit and enjoyment, we can ensure that sports become a source of motivation, stress relief, and overall development for every student.

MANAGING COMMITTEE 2026-2027

MANIRAJ K

STUDENTS' CO-ORDINATOR

As your Student Coordinator, my vision is to make the CA journey smoother, smarter, and more supportive for every student. I believe that education is not just about exams, but about creating an environment where students feel guided, connected, and empowered.

My first priority is to ensure that outstation students have safe and comfortable accommodation, so they can focus on studies without worrying about basic needs. Alongside this, I aim to upgrade study halls into modern, motivating spaces that inspire concentration and productivity. I will also dedicate myself to spreading awareness about ICAI processes, opportunities, and updates, ensuring that no student feels left behind or confused.

Equally important is building a stronger bridge between faculty and students, so communication flows freely and academic growth is supported at every step. I will stand with you in academic concerns such as revaluation or marks discrepancies, offering proper guidance and support.

Career direction is another pillar of my mission — I will help students secure the right articleship in the right firm, backed by mentorship and clarity. Beyond academics, I believe in nurturing community spirit. Post-exam activities and student gatherings will help us relax, connect, and strengthen our bonds as a CA family.

This manifesto is not just a list of promises, but a commitment to your voice, your support, and your growth. Together, we can build a better CA experience — one that values comfort, clarity, connection, and career.

EVENT ORGANISER

Stepping into the role of Event Organizer for SICASA is both an honour and a responsibility that I truly cherish. My vision for this year is to make SICASA a vibrant platform where learning, creativity, and opportunities come together to create a meaningful student experience.

I believe events are more than schedules on a calendar—they are opportunities to inspire, connect, and grow. This year, I aspire to bring fresh and innovative initiatives that are engaging, interactive, and impactful. From knowledge-driven sessions to exciting activities, my aim is to ensure that every event adds value to your journey as future professionals.

A key part of my vision is inclusivity. SICASA should be a space where every student feels welcomed, heard, and encouraged to participate. I hope to create an environment where talents are recognized, ideas are celebrated, and every member feels a sense of belonging.

I also strongly believe in the power of teamwork. Great achievements are built through collaboration, dedication, and shared passion. Together with the team and all of you, I look forward to creating memorable events that reflect excellence and enthusiasm. Most importantly, I want this year to be remembered as a year of growth, positivity, and innovation—where SICASA becomes not just an association, but a journey that inspires every member to dream bigger and achieve more.

With passion, precision, and a touch of innovation, I'm committed to raising the bar higher than ever. Every detail will reflect dedication, every event will echo teamwork, and every outcome will speak impact. Together, let's create spaces where talent shines and voices are truly heard.
Because this isn't just about organizing events—it's about creating a legacy that lasts beyond the moment.

HIGHLIGHTS & HAPPENINGS

This section captures the most memorable moments that defined the spirit of the occasion. Each highlight reflects the energy, enthusiasm, and excellence witnessed throughout. From insightful sessions to engaging interactions, every moment added value to the experience. These glimpses stand as a testament to the collective effort and vibrant participation. Together, they showcase an event marked by learning, collaboration, and lasting impressions.

ACAD : Articleship Career Development Program

An insightful Articleship Guidance Session was held on 22nd March, 2026 at ICAI. It brought together a balanced panel of eight speakers, offering a comprehensive perspective on one of the most crucial decisions in a CA student's journey. The panel comprised four firm partners representing small, mid-sized, large, and Big 4 firms, alongside four student speakers who shared their practical experiences from each of these segments.

The session provided a well-rounded understanding of the factors to consider while choosing an articleship—ranging from exposure, learning opportunities, work culture, and long-term career alignment. The student speakers added depth by sharing real-time experiences, giving attendees a clearer picture of day-to-day learning and challenges.

A key highlight was the open interaction segment, where participants had the opportunity to directly engage with both potential recruiters and experienced articles. This exchange of perspectives enabled attendees to gain clarity, address individual concerns, and make more informed decisions.

Additionally, the session fostered meaningful dialogue, enabling participants to evaluate their options with greater clarity and confidence. It not only guided decision-making but also helped students align their articleship choices with their long-term professional goals.

The Vault Code: Bank Audit Seminar

The Bank Audit Seminar, held at ICAI Bhawan on 29th March 2026, was conducted at a highly opportune time, aligning perfectly with the approaching audit season. Designed as a knowledge-driven initiative, the session aimed to equip participants with practical insights essential for navigating bank audits with confidence.

The seminar witnessed an excellent response, with around 160 participants, reflecting strong interest and enthusiasm. The session focused on the practical aspects of bank audits, offering exposure to real-time audit procedures, along with insights into the latest regulatory updates and compliance requirements.

By effectively bridging the gap between theoretical understanding and practical application, the seminar enabled participants to better prepare for upcoming audit responsibilities.

Students' Articles

This section brings together a set of diverse reflections and experiences shared by students and Rank Holders. With the May 2026 examinations approaching, these inputs would provide practical perspectives on preparation and mindset.

Each piece offers a unique approach—ranging from structured strategies to personal reflections on the journey. While there is no single formula for success, these insights can serve as thoughtful reference points. We hope this section adds meaningful value to your preparation and approach towards the examinations.

The Perfect CA Student? Think Again

"A man can't be perfect — at most, he can be a Chartered Accountant." — Pawan Kalyan (Politician & Actor)

When Pawan Kalyan Sir made this statement, we all got goosebumps. But have you ever thought — why not any other profession? Take sports, for example. Isn't Sachin's square cut 100% perfect? Isn't Ronaldo's discipline towards his sport 100% perfect? Indeed, they are — but within their respective domains. We don't expect Ronaldo to bat expertly, nor do we expect Sachin to score goals. But from a Chartered Accountant, we expect expertise across all subjects. That is what makes the profession extraordinary.

Jack of All, King of One

We've all heard the saying "Jack of all trades, master of none." The original proverb dates back to 16th–17th century England, where "jack of all trades" referred to someone who could do a bit of everything — carpentry, farming, repairs, and so on. Back then, this was not negative at all; being versatile was seen as useful and admirable. By the 18th century, however, it evolved into "Jack of all trades, master of none," adding a critical tone — suggesting that while someone knows many things, they don't truly excel at any single skill.

But in the 21st century — especially in the field of Chartered Accountancy — it should be: "Jack of all, King of one."

We must admit that even with advanced technology and AI, trying to master everything is a pointless effort — especially in a field like CA, where subjects are vast.

In my view, at least up to the point of qualification, we should aim to be a jack of all subjects rather than obsessing over mastering just one. After qualification, we can explore deeper and become the king of one.

So, don't try to simultaneously be a qualified investment banker, an expert tax practitioner, and a senior auditor — especially not while preparing for your exams. Our subjects are oceans; don't get lost. Stick to the map (ICAI study materials) to reach your destination (becoming a qualified CA).

A Perfect Timetable?

When I began preparing for my SPOM during the first year of my articleship, I planned to complete all my SET exams within a month — two weeks for Set-A, one week for Set-B, and three days each for Set-C and Set-D. Guess what happened? It took an entire month just to complete Set-A. I cleared it on my first attempt, but only by a borderline margin, despite all that time.

I felt deeply upset. Why wasn't I capable of doing this? I felt like not opening my books for a while. When I finally did, I jumped straight into Final-level classes, wanting to avoid SET exams for some time. After that, I drew up another "perfect timetable" — two months for AFM alongside articleship, which is actually a decent amount of time. The plan was simple: 3 hours on weekdays and 8 hours on Sundays. Done consistently, that would give me 220 hours — more than enough for a 200-hour course.

But balancing articleship and personal responsibilities made it tough. Every time I missed a target, I felt terrible. Sometimes I wondered — am I rushing this? Looking back, I realise the core problem: I had set an unrealistic target, and when things didn't go as planned, I felt broken and put my preparation on hold altogether.

Perhaps if I had been studying without other commitments, I could have met those deadlines. But at this stage of articleship, “there is no such thing as a perfect timetable”.

It's all about discipline. A month after joining Industrial Training, I restarted my preparation — this time, no strict timetable, just a simple, realistic goal: clear all remaining SETs within one month. And it got done — without unnecessary pressure.

Conclusion

Everyone is chasing perfection but also, there is nothing wrong with not being perfect. I'm not saying no one can do it all — I'm simply saying it's okay if you're not in that top 1%.

What matters most is whether you are trying. Show up with consistency. Even if it's just a little — keep going. Even if it's not what you planned — keep going. Even if you failed — keep going. Acknowledge what went wrong, learn from it, get back up, stay in touch with your studies, and one day, you will achieve your goals.

You may never be perfect — but never stop trying to be

Navigating the CA Journey

Firstly, a huge shoutout to everyone who chose the prestigious Chartered Accountancy course. Take pride in the fact that you are set to become part of an elite and esteemed fraternity.

In this article, I am going to churn out some tips that helped me to clear my exams. Let's dive deeper!

Being calm and composed: When you commence your journey, it's completely normal to be anxious and overwhelmed, especially when the mountain of syllabus arrives at your doorstep. In those moments, just reassure yourself that you can do it. There's plenty of time to figure it out.

Have an overall plan: It's not necessary to have everything sorted out in the initial days. But as you slowly find your rhythm, it is important to have a basic timetable. Personally, I used to have an Excel sheet where I had the details of classes to be watched in a day or the chapters to be studied. A small investment of your time in this can help you a lot.

Conceptual clarity: Try to have a fair grasp of the concepts as much as possible. If a new question appears in the exam, you will be able to solve at least half of it. Leave no chapter unturned. Even if you are unable to understand it, try to have a bird’s-eye view. You never know what might help you in the exam hall.

Revisions: This part of the journey generally differs from person to person. But my general advice would be to have at least one revision before you attempt your exams. The greater the number of revisions, the higher the chances of your mind retaining the content.

Mock Tests: Personally, I didn't write any mock or model exams due to lack of time, but I highly advise you to try at least one to simulate the exam setting. If you are unable to do so, don’t panic and give up. Make up for it in your revisions.

Adjustment diary: If you find any difficult sums/adjustments, note those points in a separate diary or at least highlight them in the material for future reference. Additionally, during the lectures, if you find any confusing points, write detailed notes on them, which will save you a lot of time in the end.

Taking rest and reset days: While it is important to study, it is equally important to take care of your physical and mental health. If your body or mind is showing signs of exhaustion, take some time off and recover. It's okay and normal. If you ignore it, it will bounce back like a boomerang during the last few crucial days.

Follow your passion: It's very important to follow your passion alongside academics, as it will re-energize you. Your love for your passion acts as your rock and helps you to stay happy. I found my love for writing during my preparation days and started writing on LinkedIn.

Social Media: We live in times where your self-confidence is directly proportional to the amount of digital content you consume. You compare your day 1 with someone's day 100. It would put you in a position where you feel like you haven't done enough. Never do that to yourself.

Doubts may creep in before the day of the exam. I have given the professional exams four times now, and trust me, the journey feels raw and fresh every time. You have made it this far. Trust yourself.

Lastly, it's your journey at the end of the day. Take tips or advice from your mentors, but tailor the schedule to match your capabilities. Having breakdowns is common. I went cuckoo at least a dozen times during the journey. During those tough times, speak to your parents and close friends, as they will heal you in ways you can never imagine. More than having a mood board on Pinterest, having a soundboard for your problems is a must. My parents and friends kept me sane. Without them, I wouldn’t be where I am.

Have faith in yourself and the efforts you are putting in. You will clear it with flying colors! Best of luck to all the CA aspirants!

Small Steps, Sweet Results

Exam preparation, at its core, is a very personal journey. No two students study the same way, and no single tip works for everyone. But there are a few small things — habits, really — that seem to quietly make a difference picked up a few things I thought were worth sharing.

The Beginning: Where It All Starts

When we start the preparation, the temptation is to cover things — to move pages, to finish the classes fast, tick topics, and feel the comfort of progress. But early in the preparation, the most valuable thing you can do is slow down and understand. Conceptual clarity is the foundation everything else is built on. A standard memorised without understanding will crack under exam pressure. A concept understood deeply can answer questions you've never even seen before.

A few things that helped in this phase:

•Start with a plan: Before anything else, sit down and map out your preparation. You may not follow it perfectly — and that's okay. A plan is not a contract; it's a compass. It gives you direction on days when motivation is low and the syllabus feels endless. Every hour spent planning is an investment that saves you many confused hours ahead.

•Go through the Study Material — without exception: Even if you have built your preparation around a faculty's textbook or notes, which most of us do, the ICAI Study Material is non-negotiable. Compare your notes with the ISM and check if there are any additional points covered. The ISM is what the examiner knows, and it's important that you do too.

•Never leave a topic behind: It can be tempting in the early phase to skip what feels too hard and move on, with a quiet hope that it won't come. Do not count on luck to cover those gaps. Luck is an abstraction we cannot afford to rely upon when the stakes are this real. Face every topic, however uncomfortable, while you still have the time to do so.

The End Game: The Last Two Months

If the early phase is about building, the last two months are about sharpening. By now, you've covered the syllabus — maybe once, maybe twice. The question is no longer what to study, but how to make what you've studied stick.

What tends to work:

•Simulate the exam — for real: Appearing for the Mock Test Papers conducted by the Institute is one of the best things you can do in this phase. If those aren't accessible, any private mock test will do. Writing under timed, exam-like conditions is a skill in itself — and it needs practice. Your confidence on exam day will thank you for taking care of yourself.

•Use SARANSH: The ICAI published revision charts are a quiet gem that many students overlook. In the last stretch, when you need quick and reliable materials, SARANSH can be tremendously useful for consolidating your revision.

•Rest is a requirement, not a reward: Sleep, short breaks, and walks are all part of preparation, not distractions. A tired mind retains little and performs poorly. Take care of yourself, but avoid distractions like movies, series, reels and shorts even for a short time. We need to take productive breaks.

•Never leave anything for the last day: This one I learnt the hard way . When I sat for my CA Foundation exam, I came down with a heavy infection in the final few days. Those last days were simply not available to me. What carried me through was everything I had studied and revised before. You never know what the last day has in store — so treat every day before it as if it matters, because it does.

•Mind what goes on your plate: This one often gets overlooked in exam prep conversations, but it matters more than we think — especially in the end game. I completely avoid outside food during this period; the last thing you want is an upset stomach or a sluggish day when every hour counts. Even at home, heavy or high-calorie meals tend to weigh you down and bring on that familiar afternoon dullness.

Switching to simple, light, home-cooked meals — has genuinely helped me stay focused for long stretches without the urge to doze off. Your body and your mind are working hard together; feed them accordingly. And one more thing that is truly important, especially in the summer months — water. Keep your intake high throughout the day. Dehydration quietly affects concentration and energy in ways we don't always notice until it's too late. A well-fed, well-hydrated mind is a sharper one.

•Find your anchor: In the midst of all the revision, the mock tests, and the mounting pressure, I found it deeply settling to place my trust in the Almighty. Not as an escape from preparation, but as a foundation beneath it — a quiet belief that if I had done my part sincerely, I would be held. It took away a great deal of the apprehension that the end game tends to bring. Whatever your anchor may be, find it and hold on to it.

A Note Before I Go:

Every student's journey looks a little different. Some start early and pace themselves. Some start late and sprint. What matters, I've come to realise, is staying honest with yourself — about what you know, what you don't, and what needs to be done next.

And as I pen this down, it feels less like an article and more like a quiet reminder to myself — a small reiteration of ideas picked up from past experiences, from friends, from lessons learned the hard way. If even a few of these thoughts find their way into your preparation, that's a bonus. But truthfully, writing this has already helped me find my own footing for my preparation ahead.

Exams are hard. CA exams are harder. But they are not bigger than us.

So here's to small steps, a little patience, and results that — slowly but surely — find their way to us.

AIR 27 - CA Inter Nov'2023

That Brown zone

Vakula E V

SRO0730906

I got signed up for a race,
Through a tunnel, to the light.
They said the distance to finish,
A lifetime long, it might.

The light at the end shone bright in the dark,
And cast a brown zone, long and stark.
But when I looked to my sides,
People ran their courses, each on their mark.

My race was not just a sprint, mine alone,
But batons being passed, an obstacle relay.
Was it my mistake, was I running too slow,
Why was I in the dark zone, my journey a delay?

I knew not to watch the others beside me,
Their zones all different, their distances unknown.
While I kept tripping in that same dark stretch,
Injured and worn, I struggled alone.

The light should be closer as I reach this zone,
Once my dream, now a horror to know.
The numbness of its expanse
Turns my own mind into my foe.

The light moves farther away as I reach for it,
While the dark pulls harder, pulling me deep.
The others have reached the light, overjoyed, free,
While I remain in the brown zone, with wounds that still seep.

I look at the endless stretch before me,
Clinging tight to the last root I see,
Resisting the pull that drags me within,
Holding on, still waiting to be free.

Embrace the E-Diary: A Structured Companion on Your Journey to CA Excellence

"Record diligently, reflect thoughtfully—because your E-Diary is more than a log; it is a clear mirror of your growth and the foundation of your professional legacy."

Dear Future, Chartered Accountant,

Imagine standing tall three years from now, membership certificate in hand, looking back at a digital chronicle that captured every audit challenge solved and every taxing conundrum overcome. That chronicle is your E-Diary—the mandatory Digital Practical Training Diary introduced by the ICAI for all articled assistants commencing training on or after 1st January 2026. Far from being a mere compliance checkbox, the E-Diary is designed as your personal mentor, accountability partner, and growth catalyst, seamlessly integrated into the Self-Service Portal (SSP).

FROM COMPLIANCE TO COMPETENCE

In the rigors of articleship, days often blur between client meetings and ledger reconciliations. The E-Diary provides the clarity needed to navigate this intensity. By recording daily attendance and selecting specific tasks from structured dropdowns—ranging from statutory audits to specialized consulting—you create a precise, real-time map of your professional energy.

This systematic documentation does more than satisfy a requirement; it empowers a genuine SWOT analysis of your progress. As you review your fortnightly entries, your strengths shine through completed assignments, while learning gaps become visible opportunities for targeted improvement. This isn't just data entry; it is practical wisdom that accelerates your journey from a student to a seasoned professional.

TRANSPARENCY AND PROFESSIONALISM

One of the most transformative aspects of the E-Diary is the transparency it brings to the student-principal relationship. By recording stipend details within the first fortnight of the following month, the system ensures financial clarity and reduces the scope for misunderstandings.

THE WORKFLOW IS INTENTIONALLY COLLABORATIVE:

Fortnightly Submissions: Each month is divided into two segments (F1: 1st–15th and F2: 16th–end). Consistency is key, as periods without entries are treated as leave.

Principal's Review: Your Principal plays a supportive role, reviewing entries and providing feedback. If corrections are needed, you are granted a seven-day window to refine and resubmit, fostering a culture of accuracy and mutual respect.

A CATALYST FOR MENTAL WELLNESS AND SMART THINKING

The E-Diary acknowledges the human side of articleship—the exhaustion and the longing for validation. Regular reflection builds mental resilience by providing a tangible sense of progress, significantly reducing the anxiety that stems from unstructured training. It encourages deliberate skill development; you can proactively identify emerging areas like data analytics or sustainability reporting, ensuring your training remains future-ready.

THE COMMITMENT TO EXCELLENCE

Fellow trainees, the E-Diary is a gift of structure in a demanding profession. It streamlines leave tracking, completion formalities, and proof of training, freeing you from paperwork and allowing you to focus on what truly matters: learning.

Treat each entry as a quiet commitment to your own development. File it with care, integrity, and pride. In doing so, you are not just maintaining a record—you are investing in the confident, competent Chartered Accountant you are destined to become.

File it right. File it on time. Let your E-Diary be the compass that turns every challenge into your greatest professional triumph.

Wishing you a productive and rewarding journey
